

Privacy Policy

We don't automatically gather your personal information, such as your name, phone number, street, or email address. We only obtain your personal information if you agree to provide it, usually through contacting us via email or feedback form.

We record your visit so we can make your future visits better, not so we can identify or harm you.

We gather anonymous data about how people use the Youthful Cities Pivot Hub using cookies in order to understand and improve people's experiences, and report back to those who funded and supported the project.